PERSONAL ESSAY

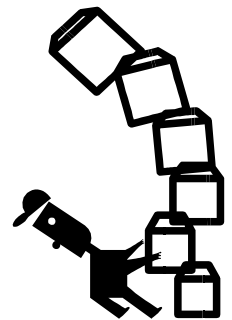

Tips for Keeping to the Focus

- A great personal essay starts with a clear focus, or main point, and continues to build on the focus as it progresses.

- All events, details, and examples should relate directly to the essay's main focus.
- Include a point only if it fits in with what you are writing.

- Inappropriate details make your whole paragraph wobbly and unstable.

- Each paragraph or section should enhance the main focus in some way by making it more meaningful, more interesting, or just easier to understand and relate to.

- Delete all sections that do not connect, even sections that are otherwise "good."
